

Myconid Caravan Attendant

Member of the travelling myconid caravan. One of the myconids associated with the singing caravan encountered on the road toward Gracklstugh. Unlike the earlier mushroom-masked procession, the caravan travelled openly with ordinary lanterns and torches, singing as it moved, with no obvious references to the mysterious Rot or the awakening Crown.

MYCONID CARAVAN ATTENDANT

Procession Guide / Fungal Pilgrim

Monastic • Fungal Caravan • Neutral Good

A devoted attendant of the Myconid caravan, this pilgrim tends the path, the lanterns, and the spores. They guide the procession through mist and stone, bearing light for the mycelial way.

Their mask is grown in sacred mycelium and worn in quiet reverence—identity is less important than the journey.

DETAILS

Role: Procession Guide / Attendant

Occupation: Caravan Attendant

Origin / Region: Deepwood Caverns

Age: Unknown (cycles many)

Traits: Devout, Calm, Observant

Likes / Interests: Sporecraft, Pilgrimage, Herbal Fungi, Old Paths

COLOUR PALETTE

— FRONT —

— SIDE —

— BACK —

ACCESSORIES / GEAR

Lantern Staff
Guides the way. Its light is fed by mellow spores.

Travel Satchel
Carries tools, herbal fungi, and pilgrim supplies.

Spore-Lantern Token
A personal charm that glows softly in darkness.

Caravan Torch
For night watch and signaling along the path.

Mycelial Relic
A prayer charm grown in reverence to the old way.

EXPRESSIONS

Use this row to show key masked expressions and emotional range. Subtle shifts in posture and the mushroom flesh convey meaning.

Neutral

Watchful

Welcoming

Uneasy

Solemn

NOTES

- Speaks rarely, communicates through gestures and soft spores.
- Masked face is grown, not carved; renewed in sacred soil.
- Follows the spore-lit path and keeps the caravan in quiet harmony.
- Carries no name, only a role in service to the journey.